- God bless the people who never had a voice, the ones in silence who endured such pain and violation.
- God bless the people who never had a chance, the ones in innocence who suffer in their vulnerability.
- God bless the people who never had a hope, the ones who died within themselves.
- God bless the people who caused this pain, the ones who in their selfishness, took life from someone else.

- God bless the people who are left to cope, the ones who face a lifelong toll of memories and pain.
- God bless the people who are needing love, the ones who yearn for love, yet live in disappointment.
- God bless the people who are created in your image, all your children, love them hold them and make them whole.
- God give us the capacity of being a blesing to all the people suffering discrimination this form of exploitation. Human Trafficking is human discrimination. As sisters and brothers in Christ, we say once again that exploitation of the vulnerable in our world continues. Men and women are targeted for human trafficking in every part of the world, with suffering experienced at individual, family and community level, regardless of gender or geography. We turn our hearts to all our brothers and sisters who suffer deprivation and indignity caused by their fellow human beings through this form of exploitation.

Zero Discrimination Day: is a good chance to celebrate diversity and to reject discrimination. By joining our voices together, we can be part of a resounding call for compassion, tolerance and peace.
